Those States marked with a star choose Members of Congress on the same day the State officers are chosen.

The Electors meet at the capitals of the respective States in which they are chosen, on the second day of December, and give in their ballots for President and Vice President.

In Kentucky, the law providing for the choice of electors has expired by limitation, and an extra session of the Legislature, and an extension of the former law, or the passage of a new one, will be necessary to secure to the State her electoral vote.

HARRISON NETT GAIN,

10,439

By the aid of several members of Congress I have been put in the possession of the means of preparing as nearly exact an estimate as possible of the vote of Virginia. It has been carefully revised, and if there are any errors in it they are all in favor of the Administration, and not of the Whigs. The votes marked with a star are those of previous years, in cases where there was no contest this year, and of course are, to a certain extent, not so favorable to the Whigs as they would be had they voted this year.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

In 1836 this state gave her vote to Willie P. Mangum of North Carolina as President, and John Tyler of Virginia as Vice President. Since then Mr. Calhoun has gone over to the Van Buren party, and consequently the state, which at all times follows him, has arranged itself with that party. In this state Presidential Electors are elected by the Legislature, and there has been no test of the strength of parties in the state for some years. The "Great Nullifier," has completely nullified the state.

We have been unable to obtain complete returns from this state, either of the Congressional or Governor's election. The few we have procured are on next page. Arthur P. Bagley was elected governor last August, (1839.) The Whigs had no regularly nominated candidate for Governor, but in many portions of the State voted for Judge Hopkins, who positively declined canvassing the State.

The only criterion we have of the relative strength of the two parties in the State is the following statement of

The Whig, of Alexandria, gives Winn a majority of only 41 in the parish of Union, whilst the paper which furnishes the preceding details, claims 101 in the same parish. Should the report of the Whig be correct, Moore will have received a majority of 93 instead of 33 votes. Whatever the result may be, the election of Mr. Moore is certain.
